Sheehan Building Sold on Foreclosure But He Goes to Court to Block Sale

The unfinished shell at Nassau and Markham known as the Sheehan building is now the property of Pulaski Savings and Loan of South River, following a sheriff's sale.

However, Timothy J. Sheehan – principal in the 146 Dundas Corporation, former owner of the building – has gone to court asking that the sheriff's sale be set aside. Pulaski's reply is to ask Judge Morton Greenberg of Superior Court to set aside the complaint itself. The request is returnable on October 5.

The court-ordered sheriff's sale occurred because Dundas had an outstanding loan with Pulaski for $381,992.64 and the savings and loan institution decided to foreclose. Following procedure, the sheriff advertised the sale, Pulaski bid $100 and since nobody made a higher bid, Pulaski was awarded ownership of the unfinished structure.

The building is in the Borough's RO-1, a Residential Office zone. Mr. Sheehan started construction 11 years ago. The Borough, in 1968, passed a new zoning ordinance under which all building permits were cancelled as of the publication date of the ordinance.

Mr. Sheehan decided to challenge that provision and began work on his new building. Under the new ordinance, a building permit already issued could remain valid only it "substantial construction" were under way. The Borough engineer of that time ruled that the Sheehan building hadn't progressed far enough to be "substantially under way" and Mr. Sheehan went to court. The Borough lost and he got his permit back.

The point of the ordinance was to preserve the neighborhood character of business establishments around Markham Road, and keep out large office buildings. But the court, in deciding for Mr. Sheehan, said the building could be completed as originally intended – that is, as an office building. That ruling still stands.

Pulaski's vice-president John Kozlowski said this week that the savings and loan association regards the Sheehan corner as "an impressive property" and is looking for a buyer.

Although the building can apparently still be regarded as an office building, in light of the court's ruling, Mr. Sheehan's 1975 permission, from the Borough Zoning Board to expand the first floor by 2,280 square feet for retail space has expired, according to the Borough Zoning Ottice.

In October of 1977, two building permit applications by 146 Dundas were rejected by Borough Engineer George Olexa, who said that one application was submitted without plans and the other without sufficient information.

Pulaski agreed in November, 1977, to lend Mr. Sheehan $550,000 to complete the building. Under terms of the loan, he had to finish by May, 1978. He was unable to do so, and in November, 1978, the courts allowed Pulaski to move ahead with foreclosure proceedings.

Revised Loitering Law Is Introduced; Adoption by Committee Still Uncertain

Township Committee last week introduced a shorter, simpler foitering ordinance. It was an attempt to assuage the concerns of the four members of Committee who had voted against a longer, stricter version patterned after an ordinance currently in effect in Lawrence Township.

The brevity and simplicity does not mean, however, that this revision will have smooth sailing into law. The vote for introduction came after a full hour of discussion on wording and whether there should be such an ordinance on the books at all. The vote was 4 to 1 in favor of introducing, with William Cherry voting "nay."

The revised ordinance limits the ability of the police to disperse loiterers to situations in which the police have "reason to believe" an offense has been committed. In the earlier version, an officer could ask loiterers to disperse if an offense seemed about to occur.

As defined in the new version, a police officer shall have "reason to believe" an offense has been committed if he observes it happening, or sees physical evidence of a disturbance or if a complaint is lodged with the Township Police. The new version also adds the words "shopping center" to the list of public places to which the ordinance pertains and retains notification of parent or guardian for informational purposes.

Mr. Cherry sought to add wording making the ordinance not applicable to political rallies, or gatherings in the exercise of the First Amendment, but Hugo Hoogenboom pointed out that such guarantees were implied and to list them each time in an ordinance would use excess paper. Margaret Broadwater said from the audience that she found it hard to believe "we can't find another way to deal with this problem. This ordinance will be on the books for hundreds of years," she said, "a huge net for a few trouble makers."

She told Committee that the Mercer County Civil Liberties Union expects to speak against the ordinance at the public hearing on October 3.

Chief Frederick Porter said he found the new version "workable."

"I like it, and I think it can benefit us all," he said. Mayor Josie Hall endorsed the new version, noting that "freedom from fear is something we owe all our citizens. I like this ordinance because it is simpler."

In other matters, Committee signed a letter of permission to the state Department of Transportation to construct a four-foot drainage swale alongside Route 206 between the highway and the fence at the Community Park playing fields. The permission is in lieu of an easement, but Committee, anxious to have the drainage problem corrected after long delays, expects to make over the easement to the state in due time.

A number of sewer tax adjustments came up for review and decision, causing Mr. Cherry to challenge the whole procedure of sewer tax billing based on water consumption and the figures supplied by the Elizabethtown Water Co. Mr. Cherry had undertaken a thorough review of his water bills and sewer tax and told Committee that he thought figures from the Water Company were "unreliable" and that there was a "systematic error" in the way the Township figures that portion of the tax bill.

Uncomfortable at the thought of opening a "can of worms," Committee approved the pending sewer tax appeals and agreed to study the whole matter further.

TO STUDY 'WORK-FARE' For Township Residents, A ossible "work-fare" possible program for Princeton residents who receive welfare from the Township will be considered at the work session of this Wednesday's agenda. The regular meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in Township Hall.

Committee will also tearn whether Princeton's two administrators, Joseph R. Ninl for the Township and Mark Gordon for the Borough, have been able to schedule a joint Borough-Township meeting to discuss a variety of mutual concerns. Mr. Nini said this week that next Wednesday, September 26, was a tentative date.

The Township would like to come to an agreement with the Borough on helping the First Aid Squad. Both municipatities agreed to do so, but the remaining ouestion is "Who pays how much?" in addition, the Township has already agreed to help the Borough with Phase I of the Senior Citizens remodeling of the Borough Hall gym, but would like to know more about

A long-term question for the two Princeton governments is the proposal of the Recreation Department for a revolving fund. Under the plan, fees for tennis courts, pool use or other activities, would go into a trust fund from which bills would be paid. This would open up the budget so that new programs could be instituted without bumping into the restrictions of state-imposed budget caps.

Under the work-fare plan, able-bodied Township residents receiving aid from the municipality, would work for the Township, the assignments depending on skill. Mr. Nini has suggested that custodial, public works or clerical jobs might be available.

A bill now in the New Jersey Legislature, would make such programs required. In Princeton Township, about 12 people receive municipal ald. Mr. Nini estimated that half of these were able-bodied but he said the program and its participants were still being studied.

Committee will also hold public hearing this Wed-nesday on the Stony Brook bridge road alignment ordinance. Members will also hear an appeal from Zoning Board approval of Brenwood Associates' plan to construct six apartment units on Ewing and State Road.

A Campaign Based on Fear

Some five centuries ago, history has recorded, the progress of civilized man was greatly retarded by widespread belief that the world was flat. "You can see that is so," the wisest of people said. "All you have to do is look out to sea: anyone going too far will simply fall over the edge, into a whirlpool inhabited by sea monsters lying in wait for the foolhardy."

The people who said they knew what was just beyond the horizon were selling fear to their fellow citizens, and because their product was bought in many homes, for years no one would venture forth to see what riches lay beyond the edge of the ocean. When the journey into the future was finally undertaken, great rewards followed in good time, and the sea monsters perished in the mire of their own figmentation.

Through the ages - long before the world proved to be round, and into the 20th century - mankind has relied on fear to persuade his neighbor that what he knows is best, and that change may be dangerous. "If we do not keep what we have," he is told, "we plunge into the unknown-" and as any writer of science fiction can prove, the unknown is filled

The residents of this community who are seeking to defeat the November referendum on consolidation of Princeton's two municipalities are basing their persuasion largely on fear. A single community will be bigger and bigness is bad, they declare, failing to note that on November 7 the town's population will be no greater than that of November 6.

Representation of the individual in the "new" form of government will be lost, it is being charged. The accusation implies that the six council members and one mayor who would govern under consolidation will inevitably be totally different in nature from the dedicated men and women who serve us today. The implication that a new and strange form of government will be imposed on the new Princeton is a ploy to win the negative votes of those who have not read enough about the proposal for merger. In actuality, the governing process would be so similar to that being followed in Borough Hall today that the transition would scarcely be felt.

Those seeking to block the path toward a single, far more efficiently run municipality are warning neighborhoods whose residents cherish their racial or ethnic origin that they would be "diluted." Loss of ability to have a voice in the governing process, it is asserted, would inevitably follow consolidation.

On the contrary, the artificial lines that have bisected Borough and Township for more than 150 years would be erased. When problems arise that affect residents of the John-Witherspoon area-housing, zoning, discrimination - these Princeton citizens have no way to present a united front to a governing body. Some must go to the Township Hall, some to Borough Hall. Under consolidation, this would be a united neighborhood with the strength that unity brings-for the first time.

Italians in the Linden-Ewing-North Harrison area would find their tax rates identical, their governing body the same as the families across the street. They would, for the first time in Princeton's long history, have a true sense of neighborhood identity

The minds of voters who have not reached a decision on the forthcoming referendum are further being preyed upon by statements that security, particularly for Borough residents, will be decreased under the aegis of a consolidated police force. "Don't stop to reason it out," those opposed to merger suggest - "just take our word that it will be so."

In fact, no reduction whatsoever of existing police personnel is contemplated. More importantly, the artificial barriers that prevent Township police from serving as law enforcement officers in areas through which they must pass daily to reach other parts of the Township would vanish, as they would for their Borough counterparts.

In the weeks before Election Day, TOWN TOPICS will present further, specific facts in favor of creating one municipality where two have so long existed, somehow enduring the inevitable friction generated by selfservice. The reasons for voting an end to the ceaseless duplication of services and effort, for solidifying the town to make possible unified decisions on its growth through the last two decades of this century, are legion

The fundamental point, however, is that the most elementary form of logic, based on intelligent reasoning, supports the need for consolidation. The arguments being used against it are an emotional sales pitch steeped in fear of the "Unknown," and a belief that Princeton can best be served by living in

"Dear Princeton Customer,"

A woman who has lived in Princeton all of her life visited our shop for the very first time last week. She was shacked. She could not believe how special our merchandise was. Her image of what we were was shattered.

Our new customers from Maplewood, Summit, Cherry Hill, Albany, Washington and Philadelphia made us take heed. Perhaps we were taking Princeton for granted.

If you have never visited Landau's or if your last visit took place over 12 months ago, we invite you to stop in to see how we've changed.

Sincerely,

The Landou Family

Hesslit, Inc., is asking permission to expand the use of 187 North Harrison to include non-medical professionals. Owners of the property, attorney Gordon Strauss told the Planning Board Monday night, haven't had any luck getting medical tenants and would like to try for other professionals.

The request is on the agenda for next Wednesday's 7:30 p.m. Township Zoning Board meeting; however, the Planning Board wants more time to think it over.

The opinions of private residents, the amount of traffic produced by architects, say, versus accountants, or the precedent involved, are all things the Planning Board wants to talk about before sending word on to the Zoning Board. The planners placed the question on their work session agenda for next Monday night, two days before the Zoning appearance.

Boys at Training School in Skillman Will Welcome Your Help

YOU, TOO, MAY VOLUNTEER: Mrs. Mary Sege (center), co-ordinator of volunteers et the state Treining School for Boys, Skillman, end two of her dedicated crew: Cherlotte Dougherty (left) end Lee Neiner. They'd love more volunteers, individuels willing to tutor helf e dey a week, or groups eager to provide special events. Call Mrs. Sage et the School—466-2200, or at home, 466-0575.

He's 13 and doesn't yet know the alphabet. Nobody ever cared whether he went to school or not.

Now he's at the state's School, "minimum-correction facility" for pre-adolescent boys at Skillman, and with the kind of one-to-one volunteer tutor Mrs. Mary Sage would like to have . . . who knows what he'll be reading by June!

And do you belong to a group? Mrs. Sage's eye lights up. She and Soroptimists Charlotte Dougherty and Lee Neiner describe how that club rehabilitated the music room, bought three pianos, provided natty navy-blue blazers (with needlepoint emblem) and gold turtlenecks for each member of the band and choral group. Young musicians perform for nursing homes, schools, and women's clubs.

Went to Be a Tutor?

There is still time to sign up as a tutor at the New Jersey Training School for Boys. You don't need a teachers' certificate to be a tutor. You'll be given instruction by Tracy Smith, a teacher on the School staff.

The School needs tutors who help the boys in first and second-grade arithmetic and first through third grade reading. You will be asked if you can give half a day each week.

The Training School is just beyond Blawenburg. It can be reached by driving out The Great Road and continuing north after the Blawenburg intersection.

Princeton's Friendship Club has brought refreshments for a Christmas party every year since 1969. Each boy gets a Christmas bag, Rex Carpenter plays anything they want on the piano and there is - but of course -- a live Santa. Boys can be remarkable, in one way or another, Mrs. Sage recalls the boy who read at fifth-grade level last October, and passed the 11th-grade level test in May. He's now 12 years old.

"He was so obnoxious when he came, but when he discovered reading, you couldn't get him to stop. He wanted to stay after class with the teacher and do more and

Robert, from Trenton, decorating traditional Pysanka Ukranian Easter eggs with volunteer Mrs. Jacob Kurdsjak, was asked if he'd done a traditional design. "Oh, no, I thought it up myseif," he replied.
"... and it was beautiful!"

Mrs. Sage exclaims.

Skillman reports 31 to 32 percent recidivism, compared to the 87 percent national average. Boys are committed by the courts for things like mugging, stealing, breaking and entering. They can stay only three years. But they come back all the time to visit.

Three, now in New York City, returned for this year's Achievement Awards presentation. Carlos, now 16, came back to describe his job as cook for 150 kids in a Head Start program.

"I just love those kids," he told Mrs. Sage.

She loves her kids, too. She'd just love it if you would

Date:

Subject:

Preliminary Report of the Joint Municipal

Consolidation Study Commission

The Preliminary Report of the Joint Municipal Consolidation Study Commission and the accompanying Sub-Committee reports are dissappointingly flat and bland. It consistently avoids analyzing the difficult questions and either ignores or papers over the real and sharp differences between the two municipalities. If the final report does not overcome these shortcomings, the voters will lack the information they should have to make their decision.

The report simply doesn't satisfy the first rule for making changes: "if it ain't broke, don't fix it." Moreover, the report certainly doesn't show what the citizens of Princeton will gain in exchange for a larger, more remote government. Finally, the report doesn't satisfactorily answer even the questions it sets for itself.

These remarks are the first paragraphs of a letter contained in the "Report to the Citizens." For the full three-page letter, see page B-16 in the appendix. Not all copies of the report contain the appendix.

Boy Scouts Is More Than Tying Yourself In Knots

....more than just the good deed and a nice autumn hike in Scouting is a whole program designed to teach young men to be respectful of the world around them.

Mostly, it's a learning program - science, politics, history and most important of all, concern for the world we live in.

Scout programs are as varied as the boys and volunteers who participate in them. Some groups emphasize outdoor activities like camping, rafting, hiking. Other groups are involved with their own neighborhood, in churches or working with local businesses.

In this part of New Jersey, the central organizational core is The George Washington Council, which covers Scouting programs in Mercer, Hunterdon and Warren counties.

Every summer, the Council manages two camps: a daycamp above Lambertville (what a view of the Delaware River!) and a sleep-away camp in Warren County. Boys from all over the Council area go to these two camps, and that means a lot of new friends and a lot of new ideas for everybody.

George Washington Council also has new programs designed for the handicapped, the Explorer program, and projects involving the whole Scouting community.

Take the new programs for the handicapped boy, for example. Many of these are being sponsored by both public and private schools in the Council's area, as school administrators see the potential within the Scouts' handicapped program for acquiring new skills (and having fun at the same time). Some troops for the handicapped are run by volunteer citizens and college students.

The Explorer program is directed to the special interests of boys between the ages of 14 and 20. Many of the Explorer Posts are under the direction of such local corporations as RCA and the Colonial First National Bank, Hightstown.

Some Explorer Posts have been geared to public service like the medical post sponsored by St. Francis Hospital in Trenton, the law enforcement post that works with the East Windsor police department and all the groups involved with First Aid and Fire Departments throughout Mercer, Hunterdon and Warren Counties.

These are, so to speak, the "career-oriented" posts. But not all Explorer Posts have that direction. Many deal with wilderness lore or sports, and new ones are always in the

Sometimes a project involves the whole Scouting community

That's the case with the current project that has Scouts and officials excited and eager to begin. It's a cooperative effort with the New Jersey Parks Department and the Delaware and Raritan Canal Commission - to create a Historic Trail in the canal's lineal park.

This park runs from Stockton through Trenton and all the way to New Brunswick.

Working with Parks Department and Canal Commission, Scouts will clean up and maintain the entire lineal park, so that the public may use and enjoy the land.

It's a huge project. It will be launched, after almost a year and a half of preparation, at the Scout Camporee on October 19, 20 and 21.

Scouting doesn't "just happen." Volunteers must make it come alive. Any adult may enjoy the experience of working with children, older youths, parents and friends, in the Scouting Experience. For additional information, call The George Washington Council, 609-883-1414.

reading through the Report is the number of sweeping statements made, assumptions without the supporting evidence necessary for public confidence. For example; "Only a consolidated Princeton will be able to plan and direct the future development of Princeton in a way that will preserve and maintain. etc." Even if read to the end of the paragraph, the page or the chapter, it remains an unsupported statement. There are a number of such

Upon reading such assertions, an already convinced supporter will say "Of course!" An inquiring reader will say "Details, please!" good deal of lobbying but very little convincing of those who have doubts about its depth of study and its value to the uncommitted.

ORREN JACK TURNER 39 Hamilton Avenue

A Part of Megaiopoits.

To the Editor of Town Topics: A century ago the village of Princeton was already attracting its cluster of satellite suburbs -- moths to the candle. Suburbans are lovely people, but ours have been unwitting thieves; they stole the name "Princeton" and now entertain delusions of overruniing the village they surround and are already choking to death.

The current political issue is thus misrepresented by a linguistic fraud. It is called "consolidation" -- as if this were to be a merger of likes or of equals. But if our fried eggwhite and yolk are scrambled, Princeton will cease to be the village the suburbs sought to join. It will become, instead, a city - just another cog in the creeping East Coast monster

I have nothing against the suburbs or against our good neighbors there, but I am appalled by the presently fashionable emphasis upon impersonal "efficiency" and the prospect of a sprawling, auto-choked "Greater Princeton," flashing neon and tinsel down its gaudy, huckstering "Miracle Mlle," once affectionately called Nassau Street.

God save us Gargaetua and preserve our integrity! Citles are legion; there is but one intimate, nelghborly, small, charming village of Princeton. Let us

AUTUMN PLANTING

with Sam daTuro

Woodwinds Associates

Now is a good time to think about planting trees and shrubs; if you do plan to add one or two trees to your property, here are some hints and warnings!

Choose a tree according to its tall foliage colors in the nursery. The color it takes on in late September will be the same for the rest of its life

Be sure to prepare the soil outside the hole where the root ball will be placed. The clay soil in this area is very unreceptive to new trees; requires breaking-up and aeration to promote new root growth after planting

Mix a good tree food into the loosened soil; include some compost peat moss or forest humus. Do not use lawr

Plant the new tree at exactly the same ground level that if enjoyed in the nursery inever any more than an inch deeper: Transplanted roots need to breathe air

Soak the soil thoroughly with water every ten days, whether or not there is regular rainfall.

Never plant a medium or large tree species within fifteen fee of a building foundation, avoid placement near sidewalks driveways and utility trenches in the ground

Be sure that the nursery supplies a good amount of soil (root ball) around the roots of the tree. The ball should be ten times the diameter of the trunk

The two movies will be shown from this Thursday through next Wednesday, September 26.

"The Last Waltz" is a film of the last concert by The Band at San Francisco's Winterland on Thanksgiving Day, 1976. Critics, at the time, said it was the most exciting concert film since "Waadstock" a decade earlier.

Ronnie Rabertson, spokesman for The Band, invited such guest performers as Joni Mitchell, Bob Dylan, Neil Young, Emmy Lou Harris, Van Morrison and Eric Clapton to join in. The Band disbanded after this concert.

"Invasion of the Body Snatchers," has living organisms arriving on earth from outer space and transforming the nature of Under Philip humanity. Under Philip Kaufman's direction, Donald Sutherland plays the public health inspector discovers what's happening to the people of San Francisco (where the film takes place), and Brooke Adams plays his lab assistant and love interest. Because there had been concerts in Princeton before 1929; since formation of the Ladies' Music Committee in 1893, in fact. That committee was a group of faculty wives led by Mrs. Henry B. The present chairman is Barbara Sands, who does not have University affiliation. The committee consists of nine working members, who choose the artists.

This year they met in May, to line up the 1980-8t season. Members are not necessarily professional musicians or musicologists, but they know music. They go to concerts. They listen to new records. They've heard this unknown young Irish flute player, this young Korean cellist.

Concert-goers heard Fischer-Dieskau 22 years ngo in a University concert. They heard Junct Baker when the singer commanded about onethird of the $14,000 she now receives for a recital. Leontyne Price was relatively unknown in 1956; so was the Guarneri, in the mid-60s.

Here's an addity about the name of the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League ... The Packers got their name from a small meat-packing company, the Indian Packing Ca., wha supplied uniforms when the team was founded in 1919 - (employees of the packing company were called "packers" so the foatball players were called "Packers" too) but soon after 1919, the Indian Packing Co. went out of business ... The Packer football team, however, never changed its nickname and so, today, the world of football has the odd situation of seeing one of its most famous teams still carrying the name of a long-gone, un-successful little meatpacking company.

I bet you didn't know that many health insurance plans for samilies do not cover children after they reach 19 years old.

Do you know there's a National Football League team that retired a player's uniform number even though that player NEVER played a game for them ... When the Cleveland Browns got 1961 Heisman Trophy winner, Ernie Davis out of college, they assigned uniform number 45 to him ... But Davis was stricken with a fatal disease and died befare he could ever play a game for the Browns ... Cleveland honored Davis's memory by retiring his uniform number, even though Davis never really appeared in that number

Tiger Football Team's Hopes for 1979 Season May Encounter Rough Reception at Dartmouth

A Princeton University faatball team, seeking the return to respectability that has eluded its predecessors for the past eight years, will apen its 1979 schedule at Hanover Saturday against the defending Ivy League champions. The Tigers' longstanding problems have been increased in magnitude since practice began by the unprecedented departure from the squad of four seniors and the loss through injury of a highly promising tackle in the totally rebuilt offensive line.

An assignment to play Dartmouth as its first oppenent under such circumstances may well confront the Orange and Black with considerably mare than it can and confidence has long been the hallmark of football as it is played at Hanover, and if the Green manages a quick start despite its major rebuilding problems at a number of key pesitions, the final margin may well have no resemblance to the 28-21 decision pienship for Dartmouth in last regionally televised game.

well become desperate should quarterback Steve Reynolds. His immediate backup, twoyear letterman Ken Barrett, to left the squad last week, reportedly because he had been told in fairly explicit fashion by assistant coach Ken Bowman, the Tigers' offensive coordinator, that his performance in the scrimmage with Wilkes College was markedly short of expectations. That leaves Mark Lockenmeyer, a rarely used junior, and sophemore Bob Holly as Reynolds's replace-

The task of recreating an effensive line after all five players on its interior had graduated was increased measurably with the loss for the season of junior Mike Schloth with torn knee ligaments. The 6-4, 220-lb. letterman had shewn consistent ability in pre-season action and will be thoroughly missed. Mike Senft, bigger than Schloth at 6-4, 240, but without a letter in two varsity years, and sophomore Kevin Schlosser, 6-4, 245, are now one-two at left tackle

Much of the rest of Dartmouth's offensive unit is in good hands, particularly at fullback and tight end, where All-Ivy juniors Jeff Dufresne and Dave Shula are ready. There is some holdover strength in the interior line, particularly Ca-Captain Tom Marek at guard, and enough on the defensive unit to put the Green in generally satisfactory condition despite the loss of 31 lettermen.

Last year, Dartmouth won in Palmer Stadium largely because of the heroics of Shula in grabbing eight passes for 191 yards, some of them truly spectacular receptions. Anything close to a repeat perfermance with a new quarterback will kill the Tigers if their pass rush fails to apply sufficient pressure.

there this These comments from zteam's opener here this ₹Friday at 3 against Allentown suggest a confidence on his part that the Little Tigers can be a contender this season.

After scrimmages last week against Freehold Borough and South Hunterdon, Beachell reports he is well satisfied with the progress of his squad. PHS won both, but not -cautioned Beachell -- "by awesome scores.

Even if he were so inclined - and he isn't - Beachell can't make any flat out prediction about the opener or the season. There are too many variables.

He has depth problems. "A serious injury in the line and we'd be in trouble," acknowledged Beachell. Much will depend on how fast quarterback Dave Dinella can gain the experience he lacks in passing and running the team.

Solid First Team. The starting PHS backfield against Allentown has been set Irom the start of practice: Brian Varvel at fullback, Paul Miles at tailback, Steve Budd at wingback and Dinella at quarterback.

The starting offensive line is also set. It is strong on either flank with Judd petrone playing split end and Leroy Hunninghake tight end. Veterans Eric Vicland and John Gocke will be at tackle and two more veterans, Ben Navarro and lan Broadwater, Carroll, 5-10, 160, will the guards.

Center is no longer the problem Beachell thought it would be at the start of the season, "We feel real good with Chris Carroll in there," he said. Carroll has earned the starting berth on the basis of his greater experience. He is a sophomore Paul Geller.

STARTING GUARD: Ben Navarro, 5-8, 170, will be one of the starting guards for Friday's opener.

In their first meeting last year, PHS and Allentown battled to a 6-6 tie in a contest marked by mistakes on both sides. Both teams went on to fashion identical - and disappointing -- 2-6-1 records.

Ewing won only three of nine games last year -- one a 27-6 triumph over PHS -- and like Princeton High is experiencing a shrinking school population. It will enter the Colonial Valley Conference for the first time next year.

Previous meetings between the two schools have been bruising, physical battles. "They should be really strong," commented beachell.
"With the exception of quarterback, they have practically their whole starting offense available.'

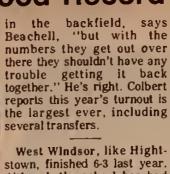

6-2, 162-lb. former wingback, has been drawing praise for his play al spill end.

Hun, 4-3-1 last year, including a 24-7 defeat by PHS, has lost both its quarterbacks through graduation. Hun coach Dave leete reports he has a thin squad but a respectable first team.

The key for Hun will be avoiding injuries to key players. Hun has never beaten Princeton High and Beachell said he would like to keep it McCorristin (formerly St. Anthony) has not won a game in its last 21 starts. It's last triumph came October 30, 1976, when it upset Princeton High, 14-6.

There is no guarantee the string will end under secondyear coach Kevin Hardiman, although Beachell claims the Iron Mikes have a good quarterback returning. Hardiman views his squad as small and inexperienced and says the Iron Mikes will have to rely on quickness to win.

Lawrence struggled through a 2-7 season last year, its third losing campaign in a row. If West Windsor and Hightstown are on the ascendancy,

Lawrence is in a decline. This year's squad has shrunk to 25. Although coach Ed Shirk is wondering where all the dedication has gone, he feels his small squad can still be a contender -- provided there are no injuries.

"They're having problems," agreed Beachell, but he doesn't plan to let that stand in the way of atoning for last year's upset, when the Cardinals defented PHS, 14-6. in the last 40 seconds.

Notre Dame seems to have it all -- again. It was 9-1 last year and blew nway PHS, 39-12. Coach Chappy Moore, with solid backing from school officials, has turned the Irish around

This year, ND will play five games under newly-installed lights, including n Friday meeting with PHS. Moore says this team has more depth than previous ones, which should quell any hopes of handling the Irish.

Trenton is trying to escape the football doldrums -despite its large size -- under coach Artie Williams, who says the Tornadoes are still two years away. "You've got to improve when you have 4,000 kids to choose from, said Beachell.

season, but in just a little more than two periods of football Saturday afternoon, Princeton Day School demonstrated that this fall will be far different

Opening on the road against Pingry, the Panthers displayed an offense that had clearly learned its lessons from last year, and wasted no time in putting them to work in a 20-6 triumph. The stuttering and stumbling attack that characterized the Blue and White for most of 1978 has been replaced by a smoothly directed offense.

Watching last year's labors begin to pay off, coach Jim Walker was pleased with his players' efforts. "A year of experience has really helped us," Walker commented "Walker Walker commented. "We played a good, solid game with less mistakes. The scrimmage against Princeton High really helped us, also. It gave us the confidence that we could stay with a fairly good team."
